

FUN FACTS ABOUT LLAMAS

A baby llama is called a cria. Mothers bond with their crias through vocalizations called humming, as well as through nuzzling and nose to nose contact.

Hummm...
mmmm...

SPIT ZONE!

Yes, it is true! Llamas do spit but only do this when they are really upset and would like to warn away others. If you see their ears back and head up, back away!

Llamas practice good hygiene and have a designated bathroom area!

"I'll have the mixed hay salad with mulberry leaves." -

Did you know llamas have a split upper lip that helps them select the tastiest nibbles and avoid any food that they don't like?

LEARN MORE @

WWW.OPENSANCTUARY.ORG

